Estonia is a small but extremely creative country. The density of designers is very high. Estonia has 1 designer per 800 residents and the country's design courses are quite famous. However, hardly anyone is aware that James Bond's legendary miniature Minox Spy Camera, Skype and TransferWise were developed by Estonians. This country, with barely 1.3 million residents, has its own satellite and possesses great expertise in the area of electronics. This country is renowned for its eGovernment, eElections, eParking and it is even possible to order a Christmas tree online there.
